"Grandma's Attic" sale at Tularcitos School

You will not want to miss the treasures to be found in "Grandma's Attic," the novel rummage sale scheduled at Tularcitos School on Friday, Feb. 10, from 5:30 to 9 p.m. The benefit, to be sponsored by the Parents Club, will be in conjunction with the annual spaghetti dinner with proceeds from the evening to be used to help finance a new lunch yard for the school.

Larry Gardner is general chairman of the fund-raiser and will be assisted by students from all grades who will participate in the preparation of the dinner and decorating of the rooms. Nancy Watts is chairman of "Grandma's Attic" and Natalie Rodda is chairman of the always popular "Cake Walk."

Tickets purchased beforehand at the school office are $2 per adult and $1.25 for children to the age of 12 (tickets are $2.50 at the door). Serving hours are from 6 to 8 p.m. Musical entertainment will be provided by that well-known combo, "Stars and Garters."

St. Dunstan's ladies celebrate snow theme at bridge party

With everyone heading for the ski slopes, the ladies of St. Dunstan's joined the celebration of snow by using it as the theme of their first bridge and canasta party of the new year. Cotton-puff snowmen on tallies, candles in the shape of snowballs and white coconut cake for dessert made the benefit bridge and canasta party a pretty affair.

Marie Rich and Carlyle Mothersill cohosted the benefit with Kathryn Walker at her home on Flight Road. Kathryn was beginning her ninth year as social chairman of the organization.

Table prizes were won by Fran Wilson, Mike Cecka, Dorteia Edwards, Margaret Zimmerman, Ruth Mullens, Martha Huff, Nellie Mirani, Ruth Wade, Dorothy Gonzanbach, Barbara Robbins, Kathryn Walker, Lucille Ambrogio and Ann Werdelman.

Ruth Mullins and Mike Cecka were high in bridge, while the top canasta prizes were won by Nellie Mirani and Kathryn Walker.

Washington's Birthday on Feb. 22 is the date of the next party. Cohostesses will be Ruth Wade and Irma Bolgard. Reservations may be made by phoning 659-2280.

Save your pennies

Birthday Dessert at Fellowship Hall

It's a tradition to save your pennies for the annual Birthday Dessert scheduled at the Fellowship Hall of the Carmel Valley Community Chapel at 12:15 p.m. on Wednesday. Pennies are donated — one for each year — (or your secret age is safe if you decide to contribute a dollar or two) and used to purchase treats for the Chapel Guild's two foster children, who reside in Korea and Costa Rica.

Following the tea planned by Vera Meyer and her committee, Olga Darch, Vera Bautz and Vera Stokes, a book review will be presented by Evelyn Rhoades. Her selection for the birthday tea will be Reach for the New Life by the Rev. Robert Schuller.

All Valley ladies are invited and new residents will be especially welcome.

Valentine Tea, "Love-a-Fair" at Hidden Valley

The second annual Valentine Tea, "Love-a-Fair," will be presented by the Friends of Hidden Valley on Wednesday from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the theater of Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley.

An instrumental ensemble of Hidden Valley musicians will provide the music throughout the afternoon. A large selection of gift items, ranging from art treasures to trinkets, will be offered for sale. Baked goods also will be sold.

Proceeds from the tea will benefit music students at Hidden Valley. Admission is $2. The public is invited.

"MY DEAR, that hat is YOU!" says Jason Rodda (left) to Rachael Parsons as the two Tularcitos students delight in rummaging through just one of the trunk loads of "oldies but goodies" donated to be sold at "Grandma's Attic" sale. Rummage contributions will be welcomed at the school office where you may make reservations for the spaghetti dinner to be served that evening from 6 to 8 p.m. (George T. C. Smith photo)

Outgoing president Elliott Anderson honored by Rancho Rio Vista P.O.A.

Honored for past service was outgoing president Elliott V. Anderson at the annual membership meeting of the Rancho Rio Vista Property Owners Association.

The installation dinner and social hour was at the Rancho Canada Golf Club last Thursday evening.

Named to the incoming 1978 slate were: David Metz, president; Gordon Lovegrove, vice president; James Neill, secretary treasurer; and directors Mary Jones, Allen Miller, Marie Gifford, Fred Roll, William Stowers, Charles Wilbur, Robert Heinzman and Elliott Anderson.

Kilpatrick is speaker at Valley Rotary Club

The Carmel Valley Rotary Club luncheon meeting last week at the Holiday Inn on Rio Road featured guest speaker Harvey Kilpatrick, who served as a crew member on the "Merlin" in the Trans-Pacific Regatta. Kilpatrick also showed a movie, Yacht Race to Honolulu.

New director assignments recently made placed Jay Orem in charge of club service; Roy McBeth, community service; Don Wiesner, vocational service; Dick Lee, international service; Bob Connell, fund-raising; and Curt Spradley, social services.

E.J. Sullivan elected V.P. of local firm

E. J. "Mike" Sullivan, a local real estate analyst and developer, has been elected vice president of the real estate division of Zimmermann, Wilson and Company, Inc., Carmel Valley.

The new vice president will be responsible for income property analysis and development, property management and real estate valuations for clients of the firm.

Sullivan's background includes development of the Del Mesa Carmel and Hacienda Carmel retirement communities.

As I was rifling through our pamphlet file looking for information on how to remove chocolate stains from fabric, I realized that most of you have arrived at your particular time of life without experiencing the joys of the pamphlet file.

While it is true that rummaging around in a filing cabinet may not be as exciting as falling in love or finding buried treasure, there are similarities. In this case, the similarities are only with the nearest possible antecedent (finding buried treasure). History has never recorded an instance of anyone falling in love with their filing cabinet. Our own pamphlet file is a great source of information on subjects which for one reason or another are not covered in our book collection. We have documents from the State Department on understanding the new Panama Canal treaty — information too current to be published in books, a folder on the Marble-Cone fire — local information obtained by newspaper and magazine clippings, government bulletins — consumer and agricultural information, and so on. You may want to use it for a school report or for brushing up on knowledge of a local nature.

As for me, armed with the knowledge of how to remove chocolate stains, I'm off to rescue my favorite blouse.

Lodge lawyer gets delay in Marriott deliberations

ACTING WITH WHAT was described as too much caution, developers of the proposed Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge asked the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday to once again continue the public hearing to certify the environmental impact report for the 376-room tennis and golf resort.

Additions to the report from the State Regional Water Quality Control Board and the Monterey County Flood Control District were received less than three days prior to the hearing. The late additions prompted attorney Gerald Dalton, representing Marriott Corp., to ask for the continuance to allow public review.

"I don't want to take my client through this process and through the courts and lose a case on a footnote," said Dalton at the meeting Tuesday. "I ask that the public have a reasonable time to respond."

Although the county counsel said the delay was an example of "excess caution," the supervisors agreed to consider final certification at their meeting Tuesday, Feb. 14, allowing letters of comment from the public until next Monday.

In a letter from the Regional Water Quality Control Board, alternatives to the problem of wastewater disposal were discussed.

"The board has a long-standing policy to minimize the number of independent treatment facilities," wrote Kenneth Jones, the executive officer for the board. "We believe wastewater generated by the development should be discharged into the Carmel Sanitary District's system."

If the sanitary district will not accept discharge during non-peak hours and an on-site system is proposed, waste discharge requirements must be adopted by the regional board, said Jones.

These recommendations were rejected by Kenneth McGinnis, a member of the Carmel Sanitary District board of directors. "We have a 2.4-million-gallon-per-day capacity. Our expansion plans show an increase to 4 million gallons per day by 1980, but it is impossible for us to believe that we will reach that capacity by then."

"We are not going to be able to annex areas until 1982 to 1984. By then, this project would require a new EIR," he said.

THE PROBLEM OF groundwater resources was addressed by R. L. Binder, assistant district engineer for the Monterey County Flood Control District.

"A review of the report on groundwater resources . . . appears to contradict the conclusions of the State Department of Water Resources," said Binder.

"The entire discussion of water resources appears to be irrelevant if the proposed development will use less water than the existing land use (a golf course)."

Public testimony during the hearing criticized the development itself rather than the individual environmental concerns. "The developers have no right to submit plans with an outdated Master Plan," said Douglas Despard, representing the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

"The issue of traffic is not adequately studied and proposals for mitigation are not realistic," Despard said. "The EIR is deficient. The only possible mitigation is a reduction in the size of the development."

"Tourists, tourists, tourists — that's the way the trend is now," said Elliott Anderson of Carmel. "We are led to believe the jobs created by this project will help ease the unemployment of this area, but it won't have any effect. People will move here to fill these jobs."

"As far as the sewage problem is concerned, unless the hookup to the Carmel Sanitary District is assured, we will be endangering the health of us all for a group to serve the tourists," Anderson told the board.

JUDGE CARL D. Larson, a member of the Sierra Club, accused the supervisors of a "tendency for slap-dash mitigation."

County Board of Supervisors request moratorium on development in Los Laureles Grade area

Concern about the cumulative effects of several small subdivisions in the Laureles Grade area has spurred the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to request a moratorium on development there until an environmental study can be prepared.

Supervisor Michal Moore Tuesday requested the county counsel to prepare an interim ordinance that would halt subdivisions in the area.

According to Moore, the moratorium would be in effect until a master environmental impact report could be completed by county planners.

Developers in the area affected would pay for the report on a pro-rata basis, said Moore.

The request for a moratorium came during an appeal hearing asked by Bud Evenson, who was seeking permission for a minor subdivision on a 46-acre parcel in the Laureles Grade area.

Evenson was appealing the Jan. 11 denial by the County Planning Commission which required an environmental impact report on the subdivision.

Negative declarations of environmental impact already have been filed on two projects in the same region as Evenson's proposed subdivision. Those declarations were approved for the Cherry Iwakiri and Brook-Kothlow subdivisions.

A report prepared by County Planner Debra Schaduk said the effects of the Evenson project would be "individually limited but cumulatively significant when viewed with the effect of past, current and future projects." For that reason, Schaduk recommended that the Planning Commission require an EIR on the

February 2, 1978 Carmel Valley Outlook 3

"You will be judged on the way you handle the environmental impact of this one issue," said Larson. "The environment is beyond politics."

After the meeting, Nick Lombardo, owner of the lodge site, complained about the nature of the testimony. "I'm accused of being leftist because these people are so far to the right," said Lombardo.

"The issues that should be addressed now are environmental concerns — not whether a local interest or national corporation is backing this project."

"The issue of increased traffic is out of proportion. When I go to a hotel, I use the airport bus with several others. I don't take my car on every business trip or vacation. People have to realize the change in our society is away from cars on their vacations."

"The Marriott lodge would supply visitors with a golf course right at their hotel — minimizing the need for even rental cars," Lombardo said.

Supervisor Sam Farr of Carmel told citizens speaking at the hearing that "disagreement among experts within an EIR does not make it inadequate."

"This report attempts to interpret what the significant impacts are," said Farr. "On any large project, it is difficult to separate emotion from fact. But this is a function of the law. The EIR should be prepared in order to make a decision on the effects of a project."

Verbal testimony on the hearing has been closed. Written response to additions to the EIR will be accepted at the county offices for review by supervisors at their Feb. 14 meeting.

The recommendation was accepted without dissent by commissioners.

Evenson's proposal is consistent with the Toro Area Master Plan, but the county planning department staff expressed concern that no EIR has been done in the Laureles Grade area. A staff report said, "There is a need to develop an adequate data base against which to assess present and future development."

Supervisor Dusan

Petrovic asked that an alternative be suggested to requiring Evenson to prepare an EIR. Moore's proposal would place the burden of cost for the impact report jointly on developers in the area.

Edwin Norris, District Two supervisor, said he was "not sure it was fair to hold up an appeal to inject a new idea" for a moratorium.

Moore did not specify boundaries of the area the proposed moratorium would affect.

Pryor appeals denial of Esquiline Rd. lot split

The Monterey County supervisors stood by state standards governing the use of septic tanks Tuesday when they denied a lot split sought by Richard Pryor of Carmel Valley.

Pryor was appealing a decision by the County Planning Commission, which refused to allow the division of a 21,400-square-foot lot into two parcels.

The property is bounded by the Carmel River on the north, Esquiline Road on the east and De los Helechos Road on the south.

Walter Wong, chief of the Monterey County Health Department, told the supervisors "it is the Planning Commission's policy to require a minimum building site area of one acre when septic tanks are used in wastewater disposal."

The commission's policy is in keeping with standards set by the State Water Quality Control Board basin plan regarding use of septic tanks.

The Planning Commission cited three reasons for its denial of the lot split:

- Insufficient lot size with respect to septic tank usage and other lot sizes in the area.

- Building site on one of the proposed parcels too close to the Carmel River.

- Fire hazards due to limited access for fire-fighting equipment.

Pryor asked the supervisors to make an exception to the rule. "Houses are already located on the property and are used as rentals. The septic tanks have been located where they are for the last 30 years," he said.

Adjoining property owners, however, protested the lot division, saying such a move would be "precedent setting" in the area where the minimum lot size is 20,000 square feet.

"We all have the same size lots," said Claudia Beveran, a property owner near the Pryor parcel. "The river is eroding into the property, we are on a dead end street which is already heavily populated for the type of area it is intended to be."

A list of several other adjoining property owners protesting the lot split was presented to the supervisors.

Farr made the motion to sustain the Planning Commission denial of the lot split, which was seconded by Supervisor Michal Moore. A unanimous vote followed.

SINGLE-FAMILY dwellings where the builder will be the occupant have obtained permission from the PUC to obtain water hook-ups. Here in Carmel Valley, a trench has been dug in anticipation of a water line to be laid to two nearly completed houses. Most larger developments, however, must await the lifting of the moratorium on new water meter connections. (George T. C. Smith photo)

No early relief expected on water meter moratorium

By DIANE VALESKA

DESPITE THE move last week to voluntary water rationing, new development in Carmel Valley is still impeded by a moratorium on new water meter hookups — and it may be months or even years before the ban is lifted.

An end to the moratorium is "a long way down the line," a state Public Utilities Commission spokesman said, unless a local agency or individual is successful in petitioning for an end to the ban on new water hookups. The ban also applies to new water mains.

But a survey of Monterey Peninsula agencies and a key representative of developers shows they are not yet prepared to make such a petition, and even if they were, the process could be lengthy and involved.

"There is a significant legislative hearing lag before such petitions are reviewed by the PUC," said Leslie Kelsay, public information officer for the California-American Water Co. "It's a long process and can take forever. For example, it can take two years for a rate increase to be approved or even considered."

A petition to have the PUC review case No. 9530, which halted new connections by Cal-Am on July 15, 1975, could be made by a public agency, a private individual or group or the PUC itself.

But an end to the drought will not affect the criteria the PUC requires in order to lift the moratorium.

"Most of the problem has little to do with the drought," said Bruce Kennedy, the spokesman for the PUC.

"The reason the moratorium is in effect is a lack of water storage facilities in the Peninsula area. Until more water sources are located and treatment facilities constructed, it will be quite a while before the moratorium is lifted," he predicted.

"WE WILL not petition for an end to the moratorium at this time," said Harold Boudreau, administrator for the Monterey Peninsula Water Management Agency. "Twice with the aquifer and dams full, the PUC has ordered a continuance on the ban for new water hookups. They are looking for us to supply new sources of water."

This week, the Cal-Am board of directors in Los Angeles will consider a recommendation to drill four new wells and construct an iron-removal plant at the west end of Carmel Valley. "Those wells could provide 16 acre-feet a day more water," said Boudreau. "This would be a significant additional source of water for the Peninsula."

This proposed project also would have to be reviewed by the PUC. Again, the lag at the PUC staff level could force local water agencies to wait a year or more for approval of an environmental impact report, permits to build plus the actual construction time.

The Canada de la Segunda Pipeline and Begonia Iron-Removal Plant, scheduled to be in operation by April 1, began environmental studies in 1971 when a use permit was granted by the Monterey County Planning Commission. A building permit was issued for that project in September 1975 and construction is now nearing completion.

That same process would be required for the construction of a second iron-removal plant in the Valley. "We would have to be nearing completion of such a project in order to meet the PUC requirements for more water sources," said Boudreau. "Until then, there is not much chance with the PUC to lift the moratorium."

The Canada de la Segunda Pipeline will carry well water from Carmel Valley to the Cal-Am distribution system in Seaside. But it will transport water from the same source used in the past — the Carmel Valley aquifer. The Begonia treatment plant is supposed to provide Cal-Am with sufficient water-treatment capacity to allow the existing Carmel Valley wells to be used at capacity.

"IF THE four new wells and treatment plant are approved by the Cal-Am board, they could provide a real hedge against future droughts," said Richard Sullivan, vice president and general manager of the company. "The PUC in July 1975 said it would lift the water meter freeze at the earliest possible date. At that time, they said they would review the moratorium when contracts were let on the Begonia plant project. But last May, when the contracts were let, we were at the height of the drought and the case was not considered.

"The drought is over, for this year. With rationing, we have confirmed what we can do," he said.

Carl Hooper, of Bestor Engineers Inc., a civil engineering firm in Monterey, said he, as an individual, would not petition the PUC, but several of his developer-clients may consider petitioning for an end to the meter ban.

"I see no justification for delay in lifting this ban on meters for existing lots and new developments that do not require main extensions," said Hooper. "Once the Begonia Iron-Removal Plant is ready, it would take at least a year for any new development to be ready to build."

EDITORIAL COMMENT:

Carmel Valley is in peril

By AL EISNER

WHILE SAVORING a bowl of clam chowder at Flaherty's the other day, I chatted with Susan (Mrs. Flaherty) Swanston about business conditions in the village. We briefly discussed the candidates for the City Council election

While we were gabbing, a nicely dressed middle-aged couple seated nearby was devouring the whole conversation. The lady, who just couldn't wait to tell us how she felt, said, "I know I'm from out of town, and I don't really have a right to speak, but we love Carmel. We've been coming here for 20 years. Please don't let it get too big."

Like most people, including many local residents, she was not aware that Carmel comprised only one square mile. She was most unhappy about the mushrooming commercial development at the mouth of Carmel Valley and was surprised to hear that it was not part of the city of Carmel. I advised her that it was under the jurisdiction of Monterey County. She was not reassured, because her vision of "Carmel" included Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach and even Big Sur.

THE ALARM that has been expressed over the future of the commercial district of Carmel pales before the threat posed to the lovely Valley just east of the city.

Carmel Valley awaits like a ripe virgin the onslaught of the greedy developers who would gladly pave it over for a fast buck.

Thousands of residential and resort units are in various stages of planning and approval. With the lifting of water rationing, the relentless push for premature growth will continue — even though it appears that the Public Utilities Commission will not remove the moratorium on the issuance of water meters for another year or so.

Based on the actions of the Board of Supervisors last week, there is little hope that environmentally oriented residents will set any succor from their county officials until we get a new board of supervisors.

In one action, the board granted an appeal for a subdivision in Robles del Rio from a Planning Commission decision that cited problems concerning slope, water, traffic problems, as well as the fact that the Carmel Valley Master Plan is currently being revised. The board, which has three members from the Salinas Valley, swept aside the Planning Commission decision and gave the green light to the developer.

In another decision, the board refused to adopt a policy on managed growth that also was recommended by the Planning Commission. The policy was based on exhaustive studies by the League of Women Voters. A sub-committee was appointed by the supervisors to "study" the matter to death and hope it will go away.

THE PLAIN FACT is that the majority of the board doesn't give a darn about managing growth. They worship the long-discarded policy that "progress and growth are good . . . broaden the tax base, etc. . . ."

It was Supervisor Edwin Norris from Salinas who said about a year ago at a hearing on an important land-use question: "There are too many controls on property rights now. We're abusing property owners. They should be able to do whatever they want with their property. As a matter of fact, I would approve the construction of anything in Carmel Valley with the possible exception of a tanning factory."

Thru our new policy of opening this gallery to the unknown artists of our community we have uncovered a treasure hidden behind the formal facade of a physicist. Born and educated abroad, Heinz Weichardt of Pebble Beach balances his work with I.B.M. with a photographic exploration of the wonders of our contemporary constructions. His feel for beauty in line, in form, in color is instinct, founded upon a sureness of structural harmony. He is artist and technician. His work ranks with the best. We feel honored to share this work with the community. The reception for this artist-photographer will be Sunday afternoon, February 5th from two to five. We look forward to your presence. It should prove a rewarding experience. Paintings by Phyllis D'Angelo and Barbara Teunis will also be shown.

Scouts hike 10 miles

A 10-mile hike was the highlight of a weekend campout at Fremont Peak State Park for 12 Boy Scouts and five Webelo Scouts from Carmel Troop 3 and Pack 48. While camping at the park, the scouts took part in Token Chip training, a safety demonstration on the proper use of knives and ax. The Scouts also participated in sports activities, games and cooking.

Scouts on the trip were Van Crego, Daniel Hu, Matt Heimbold, David Cooper, Vlad Lewis, Bradley Hanzelka, Jerry Hu, Richard Han, Phillip Wang, Bret Sawyer, Colin Cooper and Addison Phillips.

Guests on the trip were Webelo Scouts Clifton Bonner, Steven Abell Jr., Gene Neil, Roy Fleager and Sean Gillis.

The Scouts were guided by Scoutmaster Art Crego, Committee Person Jan Crego and Webelos Leader and District Executive Steven Abell.

Two operas Thursday at Tantomount

Two short operas, Senor Deluso and A Hand of Bridge, will be presented by the Hidden Valley Apprentice Ensemble Thursday, Feb. 2, at the Tantomount Theater, Middle Canyon Rd., Carmel Valley. The program will be performed twice, at 8 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

Senor Deluso is a comic opera in one act with music by Thomas Pasatieri. Freely adapted from Moliere's one-act play Sganarelle, the opera is about the attempts of lovers to re-unite after a year's separation.

A Hand of Bridge is a chamber opera with music by Samuel Barber and text by Gian-Carlo Menotti. The modern work uses the scenario of a bridge game to underscore the alienation and frustration of modern middle-class society.

Mark Gantt will make his debut as conductor. The stage director is Marc Cervania, set designer is Anne Ewers and the stage manager is Linda T. Carlson.

Tickets, at $2.50, will be available at the door (season tickets include admission to the performance). For more information or advance reservations, phone 659-3115.

Sierra Club plans hike Saturday

An eight-mile hike to Devil's Peak is on the outing calendar of the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club for Saturday, Feb. 4.

Hikers will meet at 8:30 a.m. at Brinton's, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Rd., Carmel, for the 20-mile drive to the trail head at Boucher's Gap. Bring food and water and the suggested carpool fee of $1.25. The hike involves a 2,100-foot elevation gain. For more information, phone leader Bill Bleick, 372-6738.

Blohm, a retired judge who frequently snoozes through important board meetings, said flatly that he would like to abolish all zoning.

Third District Supervisor Dusan Petrovic from South County has occasionally responded to the cries of anguished citizens — but only when they turn out in force.

How refreshing it was, then, to talk with Barbara Shipnuck, the gallant lady who is challenging Norris for his seat in the 2nd District. She wants to make the members of the board more accessible and more responsive to the people. She wants to help create carefully managed growth. She will not rubber-stamp every development proposal that comes before the board.

1930 Mack truck

Cachagua wants vintage fire truck

A 50-year-old Carmel fire truck that has been stored at five different sites in the past 10 years could end up back in the line of duty again.

The Carmel City Council will consider the fate of the department's 1930 Mack Truck on Monday. The volunteer fire department in the Cachagua area, 30 miles southeast of Carmel, has requested use of the fire engine with no liability to Carmel.

"It could never be used as a first-line engine in Carmel anymore," according to Assistant Fire Chief Vern Allred. He said the pump is no longer effective.

The department "retired" the engine in 1966, according to Allred. La Playa hotel stored the truck at no charge for five years. The truck has since been stored in a fire department stall, at the Forest Theater and currently at a site off Carmel Valley Road.

Residents near the Forest Theater complained about the engine, which was vandalized while it was stored there, Allred said.

The engine still has "good power" and a top speed of 55 miles per hour, said Allred. The city would retain ownership of the truck and could call it back any time, the assistant chief added.

Mrs. Rodriguez dead at 55

Margaret Rodriguez, 55, of Carmel Valley, died Sunday, Jan. 22, at Community Hospital after a long illness.

Born Feb. 2, 1922, in Lanealoth, Pa., she had been a resident of the Peninsula for the past 27 years.

Survivors include her husband, Manuel Rodriguez; a sister, Louise Terrazas, of Houston, Tex.; a brother, Fred Fernandes, of Lake Tahoe, Nev.; and several nieces and nephews.

Recitation of the Rosary was conducted Tuesday at St. Angela's Catholic Church in Pacific Grove and a Mass of Christian Burial was offered Wednesday at the same church, followed by entombment at San Carlos Cemetery in Monterey.

Hartnell plans Marble-Cone field trip

A two-day field trip study entitled Marble-Cone Fire: an Ecological Perspective will be sponsored by Hartnell College Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 4-5.

The subject of study will be the natural restoration of the environment following the Marble-Cone fire, the second largest in California history. Bruce G. Elliott, Monterey management supervisor for the Department of Fish and Game, will conduct the examination of the unique California plant communities known as hard chaparral and high chaparral and other plant and animal groups which figured prominently in the history and development of the fire.

Students must supply their own transportation, although an attempt will be made to organize carpools. Participants should bring lunch, warm clothing and stout hiking footwear.

Fee for the course is $10. To reserve space, phone 1-758-1221.

Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble to present 'Madame Butterfly'

The Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble production of Puccini's tragic love story, Madame Butterfly, will be staged at the Hidden Valley Theatre in Carmel Valley Village Friday and Sunday, Feb. 3 and 5. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday. The opera will be sung in English.

Set in Nagasaki, Japan, in the early 1900s, Madame Butterfly is the story of Cio-Cio San, a geisha girl, and her romance with B. F. Pinkerton, a U.S. Navy lieutenant.

Because of the demanding nature of the role, Madame Butterfly is sung in some performances by Rebecca Cook and in others by Marion Vernet Moore.

The role of B. F. Pinkerton is shared by William Eichorn and Carlos Gueits-Bonilla.

The opera program at Hidden Valley accepts a small group of young singers each year to live on campus and study the art and craft of opera production for seven months.

During the 1978 season, the Opera Ensemble will also present Donizetti's The Elixir of Love, with opening night Friday, March 10, and Verdi's Rigoletto, which opens Friday, May 12.

Season tickets are $25; single performance tickets for Butterfly are $8. Tickets are available at Hidden Valley Music Seminars, Ford Rd. and Carmel Valley Rd., Carmel Valley Village; Countrywide Crafts in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel; Gadsby's, 324 Main St., Salinas; the How to Do Anything Bookstore, Ocean and Monte Verde, Carmel; Lily Walker Records, 169 Fountain Ave., Pacific Grove; and the Record Cove, 421 Alvarado St., Monterey.

We make other money green with envy.

If there's one thing all economists agree on it's this: Money is happiest when it's safe, and when it's growing.

Which are exactly the conditions we provide at Northern California Savings.

Deposits are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which keeps them safe. And they keep growing, because in addition to our Regular Savings, we have all of the high yield Certificate Accounts. It depends only on how much you wish to save, and for how long.

$20,000, in six years, can become $31,838.63 when held in a 7.75% annual rate account with daily compounded interest left to accumulate.*

So if your money isn't earning quite that much, and you suspect it isn't entirely happy where it is, you know what to do.

We'll make it positively ecstatic!

*Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for premature withdrawal from any certificate.

Tack is what horsepeople call saddles, bridles, currycombs, lead shanks and other assorted pieces of junk necessary to the enjoyment of horses. Gear, tackle, trim. None of it comes in easy shapes to store. So we hide it all in one untidy room called the tack room.

There are purists who claim that tack rooms are not necessarily untidy. In theory. It just works out that way in practice.

Tack rooms get a very lived-in look because the resident horsekeeper spends more time riding than she does tidying up. Actually the look is "lived out." Ditto the houses of horseowners. We've never met a horse owner who wasn't looking for or wishing for a maid, clean-up person, or live-in grandmother.

At fancy horse shows the big professional stables set up model tackrooms with indoor and outdoor curtains. This is supposed to give the visitor some idea of the glories that stable enjoys at home. There are trophies and pictures, carpeting on the floor and rows of silken-surfaced saddles. The bridles are beautifully oiled. The harness is sensuous enough to start a secret leather fetish. The fragrance of saddlesoap is an irresistible perfume.

When we were young, single and still believed in high ideals like clean tack and tidy tackrooms, we tried to duplicate the model tackroom at home. Bridles got hung by the poll strap and the buckle of the reins. The throatlatch was looped in a figure eight and buckled in front of the hanging bridle.

English saddles were stored on bare racks with stirrup irons run up on the leathers. The girth was unbuckled from both sides and placed, inner side up, over the saddle and through the stirrup irons. The saddle pads were hung on airing racks.

Our ideal tack room lasted two days. Elves came from der voodvork oudt. They left the saddlesoap melting in a scummy bucket. A sweaty saddle blanket glued itself to the underside of a mildewing saddle. The dog never brought back the bridle rein we'd used as a dog leash.

While it may seem that orderly tackrooms self-destruct or undergo spontaneous combustion, some specific enemies may be identified. Children, for instance. Children are natural enemies of cleanliness, order, sweetness and sanity. Children can destroy a tidy tack room just passing by ten feet downwind.

Who hung the sheepskin-lined saddle on the barbed wire fence? Nobody. Who dropped the crop in the poison oak? Not me. Has anyone seen the curry comb? Not for weeks. Has anybody any idea where the hoofpick went? What's a hoofpick, Mommy?

Our friend has a tack room of gear that would be flattered to be called "working tack." It's a scuzzy lot of battered saddles that don't raise mother's eyebrows or blood pressure when she sees them being dragged through the dirt by three-foot-tall cowboys. Her own saddle hangs in that tackroom also. It has a sign hung on it: "Warning: This saddle is protected by 10,000 volts of electricity, ten rabid watch dogs and one irate mother!" But what worked best was when she padlocked the stirrups together.

Let's hear a kind word for beat up tack. Like serviceably sound horses or frazzled parents, they don't have to be perfect to be good and they don't have to be good to be fun. Sometimes it's more fun to have the freedom of ghastly gear than to have the care of good stuff.

Last week we urged old horse down to the muddy river at a familiar crossing point. He did not want to step more than hoof deep into the opaque waters. We urged him and suddenly the bottom dropped out. The horse plunged to his shoulders into an unsuspected hole. Behind him, his favorite pony, ridden by one of our favorite children, also went for a swim. Screaming! Surging! Scramble for shore!

We went home and cared for cold wet creatures, human and equine. With swift attention we convinced them that the experience was more appealing than appalling. Swimming in the saddle — what fun!

Meanwhile, the saddles dried curling and cracking. If they survive, we will get around to oiling them next week. At certain times in our lives scrungy gear suits the way we live now. When the going gets tough and the tough get going, shiny tack has got to be the last thing one needs to worry about.
